Granite State Reflections

Nine historic developments approved by New Hampshire's Legislature over the past 72 years continue to function as basic features of the public life of its citizenry.

The Granite State never had an official state flag until it was created by the 1909 Legislature. It has had an official state seal, in various forms, since 1775, but it was not until 1931 that the Legislature created the present seal with rigid restrictions as to detail.

New Hampshire became the last state in the Union to adopt a state motto, which became "Live Free or Die," by vote of the 1945 Legislature. And the 1945 legislators also adopted the Old Man of the Mountain, the world famous scenic wonder of the White Mountains, as the state's official emblem.

In addition, by legislative actions, the purple lilac became the state flower in 1919; the white birch became the state tree in 1947; the purple finch became the state bird in 1957, and the ladybug became the state insect in 1977. New Hampshire also has an official state song, and several honorary state songs, created over a period of years.

Flag Adopted in 1909

It was not until 1909 that the Legislature adopted an official state flag, and its use was mostly restricted to State House display.

Then the 1955 Legislature gave the Governor authority to promulgate regulations for its general use, and this was implemented by Governor Lane Dwinell of Lebanon on August 8, 1956.

The 1909 flag law read:

The body or field of the flag shall be blue and shall bear upon its center in suitable proportion and colors, a representation of the state seal. The motto shall include the date 1784. Said seal shall be surrounded by a wreath of laurel leaves with nine stars interspersed. When used for military purpose, said flag shall conform to the regulations of the United States.

Said flag shall be displayed above the State House whenever the Legislature is in session, and during meetings of the Governor and Council, when expedient, and upon such other occasions as the Governor may designate.

Governor Dwinell's 1956 regulations, which continue to this day, include the following:

Whenever the state flag is flown on the same halyard with the flag of the United States, the latter should always be at the peak. When the flags are flown from adjacent staffs or poles, the flag of the United States is hoisted first and lowered last.

The state flag should not be used to cover a casket, nor to decorate graves...The state flag should never be used as a covering for a statue or monument at an unveiling ceremony...The state flag should never be carried flat or horizontally, but always aloft and free.

The numeral 1784 was changed to 1776 when the Legislature voted an improved state Seal in 1931.

Earlier Granite State Flags

New Hampshire men carried flags of various designs through wars of the past two centuries. Eighty-five of them, from the Civil War, have long been on display in Hall of Flags in the State House, and others from following conflicts have also been encased on its walls.

Unknown to most Granite State citizens, a special American flag is flown seven days a year on the State House lawn. It is a replica of the historic Battle of Bennington flag. It has 13 stars and the date of 1776, and was carried by New Hampshire volunteers in the immortal 1777 Vermont conflict, which became a victorious turning point in the War for Freedom.

By order of the Governor and Council, the Bennington emblem is flown beside the statue of General John Stark on April 19, the Patriots' Day holiday observed only in Massachusetts; the annual June 14 Flag Day; the June 17 anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill, led by New Hampshire men; on August 16 and 17, the anniversary of General Stark's Bennington victory; on August 28, Stark's birthday of 1728, and on September 17, the anniversary of the signing of the federal constitution in 1787.

Colorful Session of Flowers

The purple lilac became New Hampshire's official state flower, in a most colorful manner, in the 1919 legislative session. It was opposed by nine other flowers, including the apple blossom and the purple aster. The other flowery contenders were the wood lily, Mayflower, goldenrod, wild pasture rose, evening primrose and the buttercup.

This legislative battle of the flowers was launched on January 9, when Rep. Charles B. Drake, Lebanon physician, filed a purple lilac bill on behalf of two sisters -- Mrs. Marietta C. Wright of Etna and Mrs. Josephine A. Joslin of Surry, two of New Hampshire's tinier towns. It continued through a dozen weeks, and was finally resolved with the help of botanical experts from Dartmouth College and New Hampshire College (now the University of New Hampshire).

Other legislators quickly became flower proposers. They were Dentist Henry F. Libby of Wolfeboro for the wood lily; Dr. Erwin W. Hodsdon of Ossipee for the water lily; John Knowlton, Concord street car conductor for the goldenrod, and farmer Walter W. Sanborn of Brookfield for the pasture rose. The House Agriculture Committee aired the flower bills through a month of colorful hearings, and filed a surprising recommendation that all five proposals be killed, and substituted by the apple blossom.

The committee's recommendation was approved by the House, even as it required two votes to kill the purple lilac, in that February 20 action, and the apple blossom was sent up to the Senate for concurrence. In this action, Henry J. Van Vliet, blind Manchester lawmaker, vainly proposed the mayflower.

Flowers Hit Senate Lottery

The Senate developed considerable purple lilac sentiment. During ensuing discussions, the buttercup was proposed and then forgotten. Entirely opposed to the apple blossom, but unable to muster majority support for any other flower, the 24 members of the Senate turned to a novel solution. They placed the names of three flowers in a hat, blindfolded Senate Clerk Earle C. Gordon of Canaan, and ordered him to pull one out. The purple lilac, the mayflower and the purple aster went into the lottery, and the latter won the draw.

The Senate reported its unique decision to the House, which clung to the apple blossom, and the impasse was referred to a committee of conference. House members of this group were Attorneys Benjamin W. Couch of Concord and

George W. Clyde of Hudson, shoe manufacturer Clarence M. Collins of Danville, and farmers John H. Smith of Atkinson and Lansing W. Wilder of Gilsum. The Senate members were banker Herbert B. Fisher of Pittsfield, shoe merchant Guy H. Hubbard of Boscawen, grain dealer George A. Blanchard of Moultonborough, mill operator John Levi Meader of Rochester, and bank cashier Fred H. Perry of Charlestown.

The 10-man conference committee soon became stalemated on the flower fuss, and turned to another unique solution. It asked two botanists, Professor Arthur Houston Chivers of Dartmouth and Professor Ormond Butler of the state college to arbitrate the dilemma, and agreed to accept their decision.

Within a few days the two botanists informed the conference committee that they had also become stalemated. The Dartmouth expert favored the purple lilac, while his state college counter-part favored the evening primrose, with the purple aster as his second choice. Faced with this deadlock added to its own deadlock, the conference committee voted eight-to-two for the purple lilac. Farmers Smith and Wilder stuck to the apple blossom to the bitter end.

The House and Senate concurred with the committee compromise, without further argument, and Governor John H. Bartlett of Portsmouth signed the purple lilac into law on March 28.

Boosted By Garden Clubs

The New Hampshire Federation of Garden Clubs has long promoted the worth of the purple lilac as New Hampshire's official flower. In 1939 it induced Governor Francis P. Murphy of Nashua to plant six lilac bushes from the provincial Wentworth mansion on the seacoast (now a state shrine) in the State House yard on Arbor Day, where they bloom to this day. Two years later, the federation launched an endowment fund at the University of New Hampshire to promote the development of lilacs. About the same time, the federation named its quarterly magazine "The Lilac Letter," which continues to this day.

Two Rochesters - in New Hampshire and New York - have so many lilacs that each is known as the Lilac City. New Hampshire's Rochester won its lilac label thanks to William H. Champlin of that city. A half century ago, he planted hundreds of lilacs in special hybrid forms, both purple and white, along the entire mile of Rochester Hill Road, near his home. This led to other lilac plantings in the ensuing years.

Seal Adjusted in 1931

New Hampshire has had a state seal for more than 200 years, but its present form is only 50 years old.

The seal was first created in 1775 by the First Provincial Congress. It comprised a pine tree and an upright fish, on each side of a bundle of five arrows. The design reflected the state's then two major economic resources, and the arrows symbolized the strength of unity among the then five counties.

When the present state constitution became effective in 1784, the new Legislature revised the seal, to depict a ship on stocks, with a rising sun in the background, to reflect Portsmouth having become a major shipbuilding center during the war years. Various items for shipment were also shown on a frontal dock.

Details of this 1784 seal became so distorted in the ensuing century and a half, that the 1931 Legislature voted major improvements, and, for a first time, spelled out its makeup. Director Otis G. Hammond of the New Hampshire Historical Society sparked this adjustment, by reporting that artists and sketchers had injected surprising details into the seal, as they produced new dies every few years for official state use. They produced rum barrels on the dock, and, on occasion, even human beings beside them.

When Governor John G. Winant of Concord launched a second term in 1931, he named a committee to serve with Hammond, to produce a less objectionable seal. The 1931 Legislature readily approved its recommendations, and the youngest member of the committee, Mrs. Elizabeth Chandler of Concord still likes to recall her role on the project.

Historic Warship Honored

The frigate Raleigh, built at Portsmouth in 1776, as one of the first 13 warships sponsored by the Continental Congress for a new American navy, became the centerpiece of the 1931 seal. The figure 1784 on the old seal was changed to 1776. The old Latin phrase "Neo Hantoniensis 1784 Sigillum Republica" around the circular seal was replaced with "Seal of the state of New Hampshire 1776." The 1931 seal law spelled out that only a granite boulder could be shown in the foreground, as symbolic of the Granite State's rugged terrain and the character of its citizenry.

The Raleigh had a checkered career of adversities, while becoming the first to carry the American flag into sea battle. She was unable to go to sea for 15 months for lack of armament, and after her first voyage to France for munitions, her captain was dismissed for incompetency. Soon thereafter she was beached off Maine, captured by British warships, and used for the remainder of the Revolutionary War against her own country.

Captain John F. Rowe (USN retired) of Newington resurrected the life and lore of the Raleigh in recent years. The British liked the sturdiness of the frigate so much that they sketched its construction details, to build others like it, and Captain Rowe obtained the drawings from London, to enable him to paint the Raleigh in all its pristine glory. And when Governor Hugh J. Gallen and his Executive Council celebrated the 300th anniversary of New Hampshire's state government last year, Publisher William Loeb of The Union Leader and New Hampshire Sunday News purchased an enlarged portrait of the Raleigh, by Captain Rowe, and presented it to the state for permanent display in the State House.

Motto and Emblem in 1945

It was the 1945 Legislature that gave New Hampshire its official motto and emblem, as World War II approached a successful end.

The motto became "Live Free Or Die," as once voiced by General John Stark, the state's most distinguished hero of the Revolutionary War, and the world famous Old Man of the Mountain was voted the official state emblem.

The motto was part of a volunteer toast which General Stark sent to his wartime comrades, in which he declined an invitation to head up a 32nd anniversary reunion of the 1777 Battle of Bennington in Vermont, because of poor health. The toast said in full: "Live Free Or Die; Death Is Not The Worst Of Evils." The following year, a similar invitation (also declined) said: "The toast, sir, which you sent us in 1809 will continue to vibrate with unceasing pleasure in our ears, 'Live Free Or Die; Death Is Not The Worst Of Evils.'"

New Hampshire became the last state to adopt a motto, and the Stark toast was enacted under unusual circumstances. The Manchester Union Leader sponsored a motto contest, as the idea came before the legislators. It netted some 3,500 suggestions and a board of judges settled on "Strong and Steadfast as the Granite Hills," as proposed by Professor Curtis Hidden Page of Gilmanton, a former state Senator.

The Senate approved Page's suggestion on May 2, and then it was upset in the House of Representatives the following afternoon. Speaking for patriotic groups, Rep. J. Walker Wiggin of Manchester led a successful floor fight to substitute the "Live Free Or Die" toast for a motto. Rep. John P.H. Chandler of Warner also vigorously supported the Wiggin shift, and it was approved by the House by a lopsided 179-85 standing vote. The Senate promptly concurred without argument.

It was Rep. Harry P. Smart of Ossipee who sponsored the Old Man of the Mountain as the state emblem, and it became law without any argument. He now is in his 99th year, as the state's oldest living former legislator.

Highest Court Hits Motto

The 1969 Legislature voted to place Stark's motto upon all non-commercial motor vehicle license plates, beginning in 1970. This policy developed opposition from a few persons. They argued that they did not subscribe to the motto's sentiments, and insisted it was a violation of their constitutional rights to be forced to carry it on their automobiles. This led to a 1971 state Senate proposal to take the motto off the license plates, but it was defeated, 13-7.

In a following test case, the State Supreme Court ruled it was illegal to deface or remove the motto from license plates on private automobiles.

Mr. and Mrs. George Maynard of Lebanon, members of the Jehovah's Witnesses faith, took the issue into federal courts in 1975, after he had been twice fined, and jailed for 15 days, for covering, or chiseling off, the motto on the plates of their two automobiles. The federal District Court in Concord ruled in their favor, declaring that Maynard was correct in arguing that "I refuse to be coerced by the state into advertising a slogan which I find morally, ethically, religiously and politically abhorrent."

The state government appealed this ruling to the United States Supreme Court, in 1977, where the final judgment upheld the District Court's decision. The high tribunal observed:

We are faced with the question of whether the state may constitutionally require an individual to participate in the dissemination of an ideological message by displaying it on his private property in a manner and for the express purpose that it be observed and read by the public. We hold that the state may not do so.

Two years later the federal Supreme Court approved yet another public slogan, which also had a New Hampshire connection. A federal District Court in Texas denied an atheist's claim that "In God We Trust" on American money was a religious intrusion of personal freedom, and the high court sustained this verdict. The federal courts noted that, unlike display of New Hampshire's motto on automobile plates, "Currency is generally carried in a purse or pocket and need not be displayed by the public."

It was Salmon Portland Chase, native of Cornish, who became a prominent political citizen of Ohio, who first placed the national motto on currency, while Secretary of the Treasury during the Civil War. It was first placed upon copper coins, and over the years the Congress gradually ordered "In God We Trust" upon all American money.

White Birch Readily Approved

The White birch became the Granite State's official tree in the 1947 Legislature without argument or opposition.

It was sponsored by Senator J. Guy Smart of Durham, on behalf of the New Hampshire Federation of Garden Clubs, of which Mrs. Helen C. Funkhauser of Durham was president. They easily piloted the birch tree bill through the Senate and the House of Representatives, and it was signed into law on May 22 by Governor Charles M. Dale of Portsmouth.

The white birch is also called the canoe birch or the paper birch, for understandable reasons. Indians used its bark to make canoes, and it was also used for writing paper.

One of the state's most impressive arrays of white birch is on permanent display as a veterans' memorial in the tiny town of Shelburne, north of the White Mountains and adjacent to Gorham. Back in 1943, the Boston Post reported:

The famous Shelburne birches, a beauty spot of New Hampshire's north country and the landmark that thousands of tourists come each year to view, will be turned into a memorial forest in honor of the men and women of this locality who served in the armed forces (of World War II).

Shelburne had contemplated the purchase of the 30 acres of white beauties for some time and the dream of a handful of citizens became a reality when the citizens voted to raise and appropriate $800, the purchase price, from Gorham Savings Bank, the owner, at this week's annual March town meeting.

Queen Of The Woods

The official state tree was labelled "Queen Of The Woods," by Evelyn W. Cortez, in an article in the December, 1947, issue of New Hampshire Troubadour, the one-time esteemed state government booklet, which said in part:

There are several reasons for choosing the white birch for the state tree. Not only is it native to New Hampshire - a first consideration - but it is found in all regions of the state, growing as it does on rich-wooded slopes and along the borders of lakes and streams. It is a characteristic part of the scenery.

The beauty of the white birch is dramatic against the green of other trees. While all birches are sturdy and graceful and may grow tall, the canoe, or white birch sometimes reaches a height of 80 feet. Its bark is chalky to cream white, tinged with yellow, and peels in thin film-like layers. Its leaves are broadly oval on short, stout leaf stalks. The cylindrical fruit spikes usually droop in contrast to the more commonly erect fruit of the other birches.

Purple Finch Easy Victor

The pert little purple finch toppled the one-time sturdy New Hampshire hen to become the Granite State's official bird, by vote of the 1957 Legislature.

Rep. Robert S. Monahan of Hanover, then Dartmouth College forester, sponsored a purple finch bill, which was filed in the House of Representatives on February 12, Lincoln's birthday anniversary, with impressive backing. He later testified that it bore the support of the Audubon Society of New Hampshire, the New Hampshire Federation of Garden Clubs, and the State Federation of Women's Clubs.

The purple finch proposal ran into quick opposition. Rep. Doris M. Spollett of Hampstead, veteran legislator and mail carrier and breeder of prize goats, once again sponsored the New Hampshire hen for a state bird. She had lost an initial bid for this special breed of hen, to become the official bird, eight years earlier, while serving in the Senate.

Monahan won speedy approval for the purple finch, as his bill came up for public hearing before the House Committee on Recreation, Resources and Development on March 27, as he urged quick enactment "before some other state beats us to it."

The purple finch readily mustered broad legislative support, because of the respected influence of its sponsoring organizations, and Miss Spollett's hen bill became pigeon-hole. The House Committee on Recreation, Resources and Development held a March 27 public hearing on Monahan's bill, and promptly recommended its passage. The House then passed the purple finch, and the Senate speedily concurred. Governor Lane Dwinell of Lebanon signed the purple finch into law on April 25.

Surprise Competition

The purple finch, New Hampshire's official state bird, has run into surprise competition for the affection of householders.

Executive Director Tudor Richards of the Audubon Society of New Hampshire has reported that the house finch, long domiciled through the western United States, has become a part of the Granite State's outdoors, in a most unusual manner. Richards explained that soon after the purple finch became the state bird, the western house finch became a popular caged item in New York City stores for a brief period, until an anti-caging law was invoked, and the pretty tiny house finches were set free on Long Island.

Director Richards said the few dozen freed house finches liked the Atlantic sea-coast life so much that they have multiplied ever since, and began spreading through New Hampshire several years ago. He pointed out that the house finch, like the purple finch, is of a friendly nature.

While some bird lovers have not become aware of the intrusion of the house finch, Director Richards explained it has marked differences from the purple finch. He said that while the purple finch actually is more raspberry or crimson in color, than purple, the house finch is more brownish, in hue. He also added that while the purple finch's warbling has been described as a singularly sentimental song, the house finch's song is not so musical and has a "buzzy note" to it.

Ladybug Wins State Crown

The 1977 Legislature voted the ladybug as New Hampshire's official state insect, in a history-making manner. The House of Representatives reversed an adverse committee recommendation on a ladybug bill, with a 185 to 135 standing endorsement. And then the Senate gave the measure such enthusiastic approval that all 24 members signed a copy of the bill, which was framed and presented to the Broken Ground grammar school of Concord, whose pupils sponsored the idea.

It was the boys and girls of Grade 5 of the school who launched the ladybug project, out of their social studies, before the 1977 legislators. They had studied it the previous year, according to Mrs. Marilyn A. Fraser, their teacher, and developed lobbying plans to woo support of the incoming lawmakers. Details of this successful sponsorship of a new law by a group of school children are without precedent. First off, they turned to the two legislators of their East Concord district, Representatives Polly B. Johnson and Robert J. Watson, to sponsor their ladybug bill. They also collected the signatures of 100 citizens and other classmates, to support their venture.

Surprising House Manipulations

The ladybug flitted into strange House manipulations. When its bill was filed on February 3, Speaker George B. Roberts, Jr., surprised observers by referring it to the Committee on Claims, Military and Veterans Affairs. Following a customary public hearing on what became House Bill 259, Irvin H. Gordon of Marlborough, committee clerk, announced one of the most unusual recommendations in legislative history. It read:

The committee was most favorably impressed with the enthusiasm, intelligence and research done by the members of the 5th grade of the Broken Ground School of Concord, and with the merits and capabilities of the "ladybug."

With such an important consideration as the adoption of a state insect, the committee felt it appropriate to recommend the appointment of a "State Insect Selection Board," so as to broaden the scope of the search for a state insect by hearing from other groups, who may champion other beneficial insects. The ladybug is already the state insect of at least three other states. The amendment establishes such a Board, consisting of one Representative, one Senator, two members appointed by the Governor and Council, chaired by the state entomologist.

The strange committee recommendation went before the House on March 3, and was approved by the legislators, without discussion. But then Ednapearl Parr of Hampton, a committee member, challenged the approval vote, took the floor to argue for passage of HB 259 in its original form, and demanded a showdown standing vote.

Chairman Richardson D. Benton (of Chester) of the CMVA committee spoke against Mrs. Parr's demand for reconsideration. So did Ashton J. Norton of Hampton, a committee member, and Elaine T. Lyons of Merrimack. Mrs. Johnson and Francis A. Dostilio of Keene joined in the reconsideration maneuver, whereupon Speaker Roberts put it to vote, and the ladybug bill was resurrected by a decisive 185 to 135 division tally.

Mabel Richardson of Randolph next moved that the ladybug bill be "tabled," which meant indefinite postponement, and she was shouted down. Finally, George A. Barrus, Cornish farmer and lay clergyman, called for formal approval of the ladybug, and the bill was passed and sent to the Senate for concurrence.

Flattering Senate Approval

The ladybug, sometimes called the ladybird, was given flattering Senate endorsement. Senator Mary Louise Hancock of Concord became a prime sponsor in the upper branch, as Mrs. Johnson won the support of the New Hampshire Federation of Garden Clubs for the ladybug.

President Alf E. Jacobson referred the ladybug to the Senate Committee on Environmental Control, and its chairman, Phyllis M. Keeney of Hudson promptly got in touch with the Broken Ground School Sponsors for a friendly hearing on their proposal. The committee then filed an "ought to pass" recommendation on April 6, whereupon the Senate gave the ladybug its unanimous approval.

On April 12, the Senate was informed that HB 259 had been enrolled in permanent form and sent to Governor Meldrim Thomson, Jr., for his signature. He signed the ladybug into law on April 15, to become effective 60 days later, which fell on June 14, the annual national Flag Day anniversary.

As the ladybug became New Hampshire's official state insect; research disclosed that Massachusetts, Ohio, and Tennessee had already adopted the ladybug at their state insects.

In an unprecedented legislative compliment, Senator Hancock induced her 23 Senate associates to join with her in attaching their signatures to a copy of the ladybug bill, whereupon she had it framed and presented to the young sponsors for permanent display in their school.

The ladybug is a tiny, multi-colored, fast-flitting insect, which was described by its sponsors as shaped "like half of a pea, and often having red, white and yellow spots. Ladybugs feed chiefly on plant lice and scale insects. For this reason, fruit growers find ladybugs helpful." The pupils also testified that the ladybug is a sign of good luck, and that most folks are always careful not to harm one.

Official and Honorary Songs

New Hampshire has the unusual distinction of having eight state songs, with one of them being "official" and the others "honorary." This came about by legislative votes over a quarter of a century, and was finally agreed upon in the 1977 session.

Back in 1949, the Legislature adopted "Old New Hampshire" as the official state song. It was written in 1926, with the music by Maurice Hoffman, Jr., organist of the Franklin street Congregational church in Manchester, and the words by Dr. John F. Holmes of that city. The 1941 Legislature turned down this song, and the 1943 Legislature killed a bill proposed by Rep. Samuel P. Philbrook of Belmont, for a $1,500 public contest to pick a state song, with a $500 prize for the music and $300 for the words, along with $700 for a team of judges and related expenses.

The 1963 legislature approved a "Second State Song." It was "New Hampshire, My New Hampshire," by Julius Richelson and Walter P. Smith of Plymouth. Then the 1973 Legislature added a "Third State Song." It was "New Hampshire Hills," with the music by Tom Powers of Detroit, Michigan, son of retired Director Edward Powers of the State Sweepstakes Commission, and the late Paul S. Maurer, state poet laureate.

Four More Songs In 1977

The 1977 Legislature voted two unusual song laws. Early in March, it adopted a "Fourth State Song." It was "Autumn In New Hampshire," by Leo Austin of Warner. At the same time the legislators created an interim board to recommend one official state song, with the label "honorary" for each of the others.

Rep. Richardson D. Benton of Chester, chairman of the House Committee on Public Protection and Veterans Affairs, became coordinator of a State Song Selection Board. Appointed by the Governor and Council were William E. Elwell of Portsmouth, who became chairman, and Ted Hebert and Robert F. Thibault of Manchester, along with Senator Robert F. Bossie of Manchester, named by the Senate President, and Rep. Jane F. Sanders of Alton Bay, named by the House Speaker.

Three months after this Board was launched, the Legislature enacted another song law, effective June 15. This statute added four more songs to the listing of state songs, with a proviso that if the Board did not designate any of this quartet as the official state song, they would become "honorary." The Board heard and considered a total of 21 songs, all submitted by New Hampshire residents.

Announcement of the name of the official song was made in Representatives Hall on November 29, 1977, when Mrs. Gale Thomson, wife of Governor Meldrim Thomson, Jr., drew the choice from a sealed envelope in which the name had been placed by the Board.

The four additional state songs were "New Hampshire's Granite State" by Annie B. Currier of Londonderry; "Oh, New Hampshire (You're My Home)" by Brownie McIntosh of Hampton; "The Old Man Of The Mountain" by Paul Belanger of Berlin, and "The New Hampshire State March" by Rene Richards of Nashua.

Coordinator Benton officially reported that the Board had voted to give the exclusive title of the official state song to the original state song of "Old New Hampshire," and this action is officially recorded as a footnote to the law creating eight state songs, in New Hampshire's Revised Statutes Annotated.*

Details of these historic events were compiled by Legislative Historian Leon W. Anderson, under the direction of Secretary of State William M. Gardner.

Under the constitutional apportionment which provided for a house of representatives in congress, New Hampshire was allotted three seats. The national census of 1790 (first census) increased this to four, the second census of 1800 to five and the third census of 1810 to six seats. The census of 1830 reduced it to five, that of 1840 to four and that of 1850 to three. The census of 1870 reduced it to two, but the seat taken away was restored until the next census of 1880, since then the state has had two representatives.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

Articles 67 and 68 of the second part of the constitution provide for a department of state with a secretary of state who is elected biennially by the legislature and a deputy secretary of state appointed by the secretary. In the colonial period there was a secretary appointed by the chief executive, but no deputy. During the revolutionary period and under the constitution of 1784 the secretary was chosen by the legislature and given authority to have several deputies, but in 1793 the constitution was changed to provide for a single deputy.

The following is a list of the secretaries of state from the beginning, together with the term which each served and a list of the deputy secretaries.

Direct Primary - 1980

Persons voted for at a primary, who received the highest number of votes cast for that office, on each party ballot, shall be candidates for the office designated on the ballot. -- RSA 659:86.

The direct primary election was held September 9, 1980, with candidates of the Republican and Democratic parties participating.

In the summary immediately following are the full names and residences of the candidates, also their total votes. The first set of figures for each office is the Republican primary, the second set of figures is the Democratic primary. Then follow tables carrying the vote in detail and giving only the last names of the candidates.

The first tables give by counties the vote for Governor and United States Senator. The next tables give by district the votes for Representative in Congress, the votes for Councilors, and the votes for State Senators. Then follow the tables showing the votes for county offices, and recounts after the Primary.

Recounts After the Primary

After the Primary, twelve requests for recounts were received.

Eight requests were Republican and four requests were Democratic. Two recounts of ballots cast—Hillsborough County Sheriff, Democratic and Representative in Congress, District No. 1, Republican, were conceded by Albert Lambert and Robert C. Smith, respectively, before the completion of the recount.

The result of the Primary Election in Senate District No. 16 was a tie. Lots were drawn and Frank A. Wageman was declared the winner. A recount was requested, which resulted in a win for Eleanor P. Podles.

The other recounts did not result in a change of nominees.

Following are the tables, with the nominees of the Republican and Democratic parties indicated by an asterisk.

State Of New Hampshire

Executive Department

Concord, December 10, 1980

Be it known that I, Hugh J. Gallen, Governor of the State of New Hampshire, in obedience to the request of the Constitutional Convention holden at Concord, the second Wednesday of May, 1974, and the 1979 General Court, do hereby proclaim to the people of this State that the Constitution of New Hampshire is amended as provided for in Questions No. 2, 3, 4, and 5, which were submitted by said Constitutional Convention and the 1979 General Court, to the qualified voters of the State at the meetings held in the several towns, city wards, and places in this State, on the Tuesday next following the first Monday in November, 1980.

The alteration and amendments in said Constitution covered by these questions have been approved and adopted, and the Constitution is thus amended by the suffrages of more than two-thirds of the qualified voters present at the said meetings, and voting upon the said questions.

Given under my hand and the seal of said State, at the Council Chambers, this tenth day of December, A.D., 1980, and of the Independence of the United States of America, the two hundred and fifth.

Hugh J. Gallen
Governor of New Hampshire

William M. Gardner

RECOUNTS AFTER THE GENERAL ELECTION

Ten requests for recounts were received after the General Election. Seven of these were Representative races held on November 17, 18 and 24. A recount for Sullivan County Register of Probate was held on November 19, and a recount for Strafford County Commissioners was held on November 20-21. A recount requested for State Senate District No. 8 was called off by Peter Burling before it was begun.

There were no changes in any of the recounts except Strafford County Commissioners. Paul H. Proulx was declared the winner after the election, but George A. Young, r, won the recount.

Below, in the first column are the figures as officially returned to the Secretary of State following the election. The second column contains the recount figures. The names of the persons elected are designated by asterisks.
